

Sustainable Financing in China's Markets - Webinar Series 2

中国市场的可持续融资- 线上研讨会系列 2

21 October 2020, 15:30 HKT • 2020年 10月21日 香港时间下午3时半

Although China is one of the leading carbon-emitting countries around the globe, there is clear evidence it is committed to transforming its economy into a more eco-friendly model. To fulfil China's commitment to the Paris Agreement on Climate Change by 2050, it is estimated that China requires RMB 4 trillion investment per year to support its green goals. Given such a strong demand within the market for green financial products, is China ready to nurture strong domestic green financial markets and ecological developments within its economy? How will China's progressive action drive other countries in pursuing green goals together?

This webinar will examine the green finance markets in China beyond simply focusing on the popular green fixed income asset class. We will review the economy as a whole to better understand the development in different asset classes and the involvement of various sectors. This webinar forms part of Euromoney Conferences and GlobalCapital's webinar series of "Sustainable Financing in China's Markets". Each webinar will build on the previous discussion, giving investors, analysts, bankers and other interested parties a guide to China's green and sustainable financing markets.
